Conservation Club at 2016 Wiarton Willie Festival

Thousands of “Willie Fest” participants gathered on Wiarton’s waterfront Saturday to take part in the 2016 Wiarton Willie Festival.

The Bruce Peninsula Sportsmen’s Association site was a popular stop as participants kept warm around a bonfire chowing down to the clubs free hot chocolate and hot dogs. The 350-member conservation group also set up an ice fishing display and club members shared outdoors stories, all part of the group’s community outreach. The aim was to encourage more people to enjoy outdoors sports no matter what the season. BPSA President Jim Martell and Willie Fest Chair Josie Myles said they were very pleased that so many people took part in this year’s festival activities.

Among the attractions and drawing a large crowd was internationally renowned chainsaw carver Bobbie Switzer who was creating a larger than life log groundhog.
